

Rear View of Connector Housing

This view shows the side of the connector housing that the wire are inserted into.

Male d-sub connector. Be sure to identify it correctly!

This is a male d-sub connector. It can be identified by its hollow end opposite the side the wires are installed. The contacts for this connector are male pins.

* These wires must be type K thermocouple extension wire to maintain accurate cold-junction compensation for the turbine temperature measurements.

Figure 5b -- Connector B Wiring